

Certified Knowledge Specialist in Creative KM

OVERVIEW AND AGENDA

Includes “KM Foundation” Online Program + “Master Class” in Creative KM

Creative (Radical) Knowledge Management is about integrating art, artistic attitudes, and a creative practice into our knowledge work/processes. It enables the adoption of agile/flexible behaviours and culture change which in turn allows the digital transformation of our organisations. Additionally, adopting creative practices into our organisations also teaches the principles involved sustainable leadership.

This course introduces, discusses, and allows participants to experience, the concept of Creative (Radical) KM and the re-learning of their creativity.

DESCRIPTION – THINK OUTSIDE THE BOX

Traditionally, organisations have focused on making work look like a traditional industrial assembly line—logical and specialised. However, in today’s digital age, work is not a production line, today’s work requires curiosity, continuous learning, and iteration.

Work today is context sensitive, and we need space and time to think and reflect, ask questions, and try things out. The things our work wants were educated out of us through production line thinking.

What we need is to reintroduce the things that have been forgotten: creativity and playfulness. By reactivating these behaviours, behaviours we once instinctively knew, and infusing them into our work activities we are better able to adapt to an ever-evolving environment, and create organisations that are more innovative, flexible, engaged, and sustainable.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

1. Identify and summarise the importance of creativity in our lives and organisations
2. Differentiate between creativity and innovation and explain how they work together in our organisations
3. Integrate creativity into a knowledge management strategy and processes
4. Apply Change Management to Creative (Radical) KM
5. Determine metrics to support creativity
6. Execute a variety of activities to support creative interventions

7. Produce a work of art that utilises artistic attitudes and practices to (re)activate sustainable mindset principles
